FOURTH BIENNIAL GRADUATE CONFERENCE ON SOUTH ASIAN RELIGIONS

The Department for the Study of Religion at the University of Toronto is pleased to announce its Fourth Biennial Graduate Conference on South Asian Religions, to be held October 5th & 6th, 2017. The GCSAR is an inherently interdisciplinary conference, facilitating critical and scholastically rigorous conversations across historical periods, methodologies, and subject matter.

We encourage single-paper proposals as well as panel submissions from graduate students working on Islam, Sikhism, Jainism, Buddhism, Hinduism, Judaism, Christianity, and Zoroastrianism, and who are engaged in original research in disciplines including religious studies, women's and gender studies, philosophy, anthropology, history, linguistics, sociology, area or diasporic studies, political science, and geography.

Please send all submissions by June 1, 2017 to southasianreligionsatutoronto@gmail.com
